MOTIVATING MESSAGES FROM SOME OF OUR WONDERFUL GRADUATES!!

Neha A.G. Shaikh, RAKCOMS Graduate - 2017

"Being a medical student is taxing but it will catapult you to a life with multitude of career opportunities and you will realize that soon enough! I have been a student, an intern, an attaché, an instructor and I cannot wait to practice once I have cleared my final steps of PLAB and USMLE. RAKMHSU was a split-second decision for me but there are no regrets because I have had the luck of being instructed by some of the most brilliant doctors. If you ever feel down, just hang in there, it will all work out! The faculty (and your friends) in the university will help build you up academically, professionally and personally and that support has been fundamental in my growth throughout the years in the university. This career is very challenging and you will only go as far as you are willing to take yourself, so study smart, involve yourself in research, participate in extra-curricular activities and broaden your capabilities. Do not limit yourself. The future is in your hands and you have already made the intelligent decision of choosing a career in medicine!"

Khadija Humaid Alnaqbi, RAKCOPS 2020 - Postgraduate

"I recently completed my post-graduation (MS in Clinical Pharmacy) from RAK College of Pharmaceutical Sciences and realized that Clinical Pharmacy is a step closer to the patient and the physician. Being a clinical pharmacist gives you a broader role in patient health care management. You will be able to share and implement your knowledge on drug related problems like drug-drug interactions, adverse drug reactions and interpretation of laboratory data, which improves the overall patient therapy. There are job opportunities for clinical pharmacists in information centers for emergencies like poison call centers or dose calculations reference in special populations like pediatrics, dialysis patients or the elderly. You will be able to play a significant role and participate effectively in clinics, hospitals, emergency and any specialized departments as a part of the health care cycle."

Sabrin Fakiha, RAKCODS Graduate - 2017

"Being a member of RAKMHSU family, first as a student, then an intern, and now continuing as a Dental Clinical Instructor fills my heart with tremendous gratitude for this wonderful institution. This place helped me shape my future and who I am from the moment I stepped in as a freshman. I was surrounded by outstanding faculties who were always ready to lend a helping hand, and who shared with us from their vast expanse of knowledge and experiences to prepare us as a competent health professional for our future. It always amazes me to see how much the university keeps striving to become better and better every year. RAKMHSU has also given me some of the greatest friends that I've got with some of the happiest memories that would last a lifetime. I will be forever grateful to this institution for giving the opportunity to keep learning and keep growing as an individual and a professional. To my juniors, remember that you are the future of this world, so make the most out of your time here at RAKMHSU. Spend each day learning and challenging yourselves, feeding your passions, dreaming big, and don't forget to have fun during your time here!"

Binitha M., RAKCON Graduate - 2017

"I consider it a great privilege to have entered into the noblest profession of nursing. Now that I'm working as a nurse, it's such an honor to represent RAKCON wherever I am. The four years in RAKMHSU moulded me into who I am today. At this point, I would like to encourage my dear juniors to take up your calling as a nurse with utmost sincerity and enthusiasm. You might not always be rewarded or appreciated in public but be assured of this: the Almighty will surely reward you for your hard work. Even if the situation gets tough, remember your single step of kindness and compassion can comfort your suffering patient. I am grateful to my faculty for sowing the seeds of values into me. I wish my juniors all the very best. God bless you all. Be the best wherever you are."

ENJOY THE VIRTUAL CAREER FAIR!
