2. Pre-Conception Care Awareness Campaign

The “Pre-Conception Care” campaign, held on 26 November 2025 at RAK Medical and Health Sciences University, aimed to promote shared health preparedness and informed parenthood among students.

The initiative offered free clinical screenings (BMI, blood pressure, vitamin assessment), expert-led sessions, and interactive discussions to enhance understanding of pre-pregnancy health. Through educational activities and awareness programs, the campaign encouraged students to adopt proactive health practices, contributing to a healthier future generation and community.

3. Pink October – Breast Cancer Awareness

RAK Medical and Health Sciences University successfully observed Pink October in alignment with the 2024 theme, promoting breast cancer awareness and early detection. The event featured an interactive session for Grade 11 and 12 female students, including breast self-examination training by senior medical and nursing students.

The day also included student exhibitions and fundraising activities such as quizzes, games, and a bake sale, with proceeds dedicated to supporting breast cancer patients. The initiative reflected strong community engagement, unity, and commitment toward awareness and prevention.
